Do Acting majors and BA students need to sing at the general auditions?

Freshmen and Sophomore BFA Acting majors are required to sing at auditions; Juniors and Seniors may petition out. Any BA student may choose not to sing, but if so, that student will not be considered for singing roles in the musical. While you may not be an accomplished singer, you can show that you can act a song and that you take every opportunity seriously to demonstrate your abilities. There are often character roles in musicals that need strong actors rather than strong singers.

Do Musical Theatre majors have to sing in a choir?

No, there is no choir requirement. You may choose to audition for a choir.

How are Voice lessons for Musical Theatre majors scheduled?
